DIGITAL STORIES

This Round will feature two Digital Stories; one by Diana (parent); another by Dr. Robertson. The stories each describe the 'personal experience and perspective' of the story teller and were created by that story teller. Each story has elements that will help us think about an important element of P&FCC: Collaboration.

HOW THESE ROUNDS WORK

We know that P&FCC means striving to work together in partnership, to collaborate, to share information and to respect and value one another. It's more challenging to find the time to be thoughtful about our interactions with each other, to learn and develop how we act and communicate with colleagues, with families, and with the staff who care for our children. This session is interactive. It creates a space where we can think together about Collaboration and how it might be created, lost, given or gained. Your Discussion Leaders will:

- reflect on the digital stories—and ask you to do the same
- share their own experience and what they have learned in thinking about Collaboration in relation to those experiences—and ask you to do the same
